McGonigle GOP Choice For Governor

HARRISBURG, March 5 (AP)—Arthur T. McGonigle, Reading pretzel manufacturer, tonight was chosen by a Republican Steering Committee as the organization candidate for governor in the May 20 primary.

The committee also recommended U. S. Rep. Hugh Scott of Philadelphia for the U. S. Senate nomination.

George I. Bloom, Republican state chairman, said the recommendations will be passed on to "Republican county leaders and Republicans of Pennsylvania."

Bloom said the group will meet again Saturday to pick its candidates for lieutenant governor and secretary of internal affairs.

The action came after a four-hour meeting in Republican headquarters here.

Remains in Race

William S. Livengood Jr., Somerset, onetime secretary of internal affairs, said the McGonigle endorsement won't change his plans to run for governor "one jot."

"I'm in the race to stay and it will be up to the Republican voters to decide in the May 20 primary election," he said.

Harold E. Stassen, the only other announced candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, was not immediately available for comment.

Bloom told newsmen that U. S. Rep. James E. Van Zandt of Altoona announced he would step aside in favor of Scott's campaign for the senatorial nomination to replace Sen. Edward Martin, Republican, who is retiring at the end of this term.

"It was a very harmonious meeting and the choices were by a very substantial vote of the committee," Bloom said.

However, Bloom declined to say what the vote was and several times had "no comment" answers to newsmen's queries on what opposition, if any, McGonigle received.

The 28-member group, appointed last Monday, made its choice of McGonigle, 51-year-old GOP state finance chairman, from among 13 potential candidates whose names had been formally presented to a meeting of county chairman early this week.

Asked specifically if today's action constituted an official endorsement of McGonigle and Scott, Bloom replied: "We will pass on our recommendation to the county chairmen and the Republicans of Pennsylvania and they can take it or turn it down."

Bloom said both Van Zandt and T. Newell Wood, Luzerne County commissioner, advised the group after the selection of Scott that "in the spirit of harmony," they wouldn't run for the Senate.

Van Zandt advised Bloom by telephone that he would seek re-election to Congress.

Van Zandt was quoted by Bloom as saying a bitter primary fight "would not contribute to the interests of the Republican party and the interests of Pennsylvania."

At his home at State Hill, near Reading, McGonigle said he first received the word from Berks County GOP Chairman Carroll Winter, one of his principal backers.

The entire campaign will be carried out by mail.

Nelson Westbrook is county chairman for the Easter Seal Campaign. Mrs. Roman Batory is association president.

Doran Raps PP&L Over Flood Control

STROUDSBURG Burgess Ed Doran last night stated a refusal on the part of Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. to give financial aid to the proposed $2,800,000 flood control project for this area may be the cause of the boroughs losing flood control.

At the same time, Doran said that he hopes to meet, along with borough Councilman William Schroeder, with County Commissioners this morning.

ing to "try to work out a plan to get the project started at the earliest possible date."

Doran charged that "PP and L should be willing to do its part in this very serious situation."

The borough further charged that, unless a decision is made soon, the whole project may be lost for the Stroudsburgs and money now allocated for the local work will be transferred to other areas.

Doran's statement follows: "I believe the people of Monroe County realize the danger we are in every time we get heavy rains. It seems to me that the PP&L Co., a firm occupying the choicest land in the two boroughs with their electric light poles and wires at no cost to them, should be willing to do their part in this very serious situation."

"Bearing in mind that the two boroughs alone pay this company over $25,000 per year in electric light bills along with the hundreds of thousands of dollars in revenue from other subscribers in the twin boroughs, this giant power company seems to have a ceiling price of $1 per pole when it needs you to install one of their light poles on your land and it will pay a few cents more if you hold out."

"This multi-million dollar company, when approached by your county and borough officials and was asked to pay its share of this much-needed flood control project offered the excuse it did not want to create a precedent—in other words, somebody else might ask this company to do its fair share of another project and it might have to cooperate."

"The Department of Forests and Waters of our state is ready to spend 2,800,000 of our money to protect the lives and properties of the people of these two boroughs—including property owned and maintained, for business purposes, by PP and L."

"The PP and L, with all its millions of dollars, is not willing to spend one cent. This company has probably long ago written off its losses of the 1955 flood and it can well afford to 'write off' its loss, but you and I are still paying and will continue to do so for some time."

"Our loss is not only from the monetary angle, but also from the fear of the loss of life. Of course, the great PP and L, which claims to be a public utility company, isn't willing to share its just part of this program."

"It looks like the people of Monroe County will have to carry the entire load. This program is badly needed and would serve a twofold purpose. First: To protect the lives and properties of our citizens. Second: It would help to alleviate unemployment in this area, and boost the economy of our county which is very much needed at this time."

Skate, U. S. Nuclear Sub, Sets Underwater Record For Crossing Of Atlantic

PORTLAND, England, March 5 (AP)—The new American nuclear submarine Skate surfaced in Portland Harbor today with a record for an underwater eastward crossing of the Atlantic.

The sleek, lead-colored craft did it in 8 days, 11 hours, on a shakedown cruise in which, the skipper said absolutely nothing went wrong.

16,000 State Garment Workers Idle

By The Associated Press

AN ESTIMATED 16,000 garment workers in some 300 Pennsylvania plants joined the seven state walkout yesterday which crippled the billion-dollar-a-year industry. No disorders were reported.

For the first time in 25 years, dressmakers are on strike. More than 105,000 walked out in nine Eastern states.

Officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union reported the Pennsylvania phase of the strike was 100 per cent effective.

Some 6,000 workers in 155 Wilkes-Barre area plants were out although there was no picketing there yesterday. Members attended a meeting in Wilkes-Barre where their district director, Mrs. Min Lury Matheson, told them "we'll stay out until a new contract is signed."

Eighty per cent of the plants belong to members of the Pennsylvania Garment Workers Assn. and most are in the central and northeastern counties.

The nine officers and 86 men of the Skate, the U. S. Navy's third and most streamlined sub, celebrated tonight.

Officers toasted the feat with a round of drinks with British hosts aboard the British submarine Oregan, and the Skate's sailors jubilantly took shore leave.

First Time

The Skate surfaced for the first time near Lizard Head last night. This was considered the end of the trip. An official Navy announcement said the Skate's run from her home port in New London, Conn., Feb. 24, was completely submerged. The announcement did not give the Skate's exact mileage.

The Navy emphasized that this was just a record from west to east. The first U. S. nuclear submarine, the Nautilus, made a return trip from England in 1955 hours, compared to the Skate's 203 hours in the east-bound passage.

The Navy said these figures were not to be construed as representative of the relative speed of the two submarines.

President Gives Power To Nixon

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP)—President Eisenhower brushed aside the legality issue today and informed a news conference that Vice President Nixon would assume all-inclusive powers, including authority to sign bills, in event of presidential disability.

Eisenhower dismissed the idea that Nixon should take an oath as acting president, should a disability emergency arise. He said he and Nixon assume that "we are men of good faith, and we are honest men that are trying to do what is correct for the country."

In the area of peace and foreign policy, the President said Russia offered to attend an East-West summit conference in this country, if Eisenhower wishes. That would be preferable, he said, because of his constitutional duties and the need of signing official papers.

The President underlined in emphatic tones his position that "we will never close the door" to a summit session.

Dulles Upheld

Yet Eisenhower upheld Secretary of State Dulles' rejection of Soviet terms for an advance conference of foreign ministers.

He said: "It is absolutely futile and, in my opinion, damaging, to attempt to hold a summit meeting unless the agenda and the subjects included on it are so well prepared as to give a genuine belief that real progress, if not fixed agreement, but real progress toward easing of tensions can be accomplished."

Davis To Run With Lawrence

HARRISBURG, March 5 (AP)—The Democratic Policy Committee today formalized the organization choice of Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence for governor and Gov. Leader for U. S. Senator.

The 62-member group also gave routine endorsement to Common Pleas Judge John Morgan Davis of Philadelphia for lieutenant governor and Miss Genevieve Blatt, Pittsburgh, for a second term as internal affairs secretary.

But top Democrats failed in two days of behind-the-scenes maneuvering to get Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman out of the May 20 primary election race for governor. The Waynesburg contractor pledged anew he was in the fight to stay.

Appearance

Furman made a personal appearance before the policy committee and said he could carry his fight directly to the voters. For that reason, he refused to put his name before the group.

"There's nothing they can offer me to get out," he told newsmen. "I have a responsibility to my friends who are supporting me."

Furman conferred face to face with his prospective opponent, Lawrence, but said the mayor offered him nothing to get out.

"What could he offer me?" Furman asked rhetorically in talking to reporters.

Both Lawrence and Leader pledged fighting campaigns in their speeches accepting policy committee endorsement.

"I'll bring to Harrisburg and the people of Pennsylvania the kind of fighting administration that I have had in Pittsburgh in cooperation with industry, labor, education and welfare leaders," Lawrence told the group.

Lawrence praised Leader's record in Harrisburg and said his election to the U. S. Senate would make Pennsylvania "second to none" in the quality of its senators. Republican incumbent Edward Martin, is not seeking re-election this year. Democrat Joseph Clark was elected to a six year term in 1956.

The governor said he was "happy" to run with Lawrence on the basis of what he termed the mayor's "good government" record in Pittsburgh.

"But I think we always ought to run scared," Leader said. "That's the way to win an election."

The surprise of the day was the slating of Judge Davis, a native of Shenandoah, as the organization candidate for lieutenant governor.

Sen. Clark threw up a roadblock that kept the endorsement from going to Victor E. Moore, Philadelphia councilman.

The judge was the only candidate not on hand at the policy committee session. Miss Blatt told the group she would run on her record as secretary of internal affairs.

McDonald Case

CINCINNATI, March 5 (AP)—Actress Marie McDonald tearfully told newsmen today that her estranged husband, Harry Karl, was responsible for her kidnapping 13 months ago.

Several Days May Be Needed To Decide Fate

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., March 5 (AP)—The Army lost its second Explorer satellite today, minutes after firing it spaceward with the Jupiter-C rocket. Odds are that it didn't go into orbit.

Scientists guessed that the satellite's radios may have failed, or it might have crashed back into the earth's atmosphere.

In either case, they don't know where it is and probably won't be able to decide the fate of the Explorer II for several days.

In Pasadena, Calif., Dr. William Pickering, head of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at the California Institute of Technology, joined Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, Army missile chief, in this statement:

"There is every indication that the satellite fired today did not function normally and there is a great probability that it is not in orbit. No further information will be available until technical data are interpreted and reduced. This will probably take several days."

Questionable

Pickering, whose laboratory staff helped build the Army's Jupiter-C, said there was only one report that a radio signal had been received from Explorer II, and that was questionable. It came from a station at Inyokern, Calif. There was no immediate comment at the Air Force Missile Test Center at Cape Canaveral.

It was learned that the difficulty which held up the firing of the satellite 18 minutes this afternoon was attributed to a tape recorder weighing just half a pound.

The tape recorder was part of an improved cosmic ray counting system that would have made Explorer II the smartest U. S. satellite.

The 32.47-pound tube-like moon would have been able to condense its experience with cosmic rays on each trip around the world. Then in answer to a secret radio signal from the earth, it would have sent its condensed message back to U. S. scientists.

In checking out the little tape recording device in the satellite before the firing, it was found it failed to work.

Several Trials

It was tried several times and finally repeated its signals correctly.

Then at 1:28 p.m. EST, the Jupiter-C blasted off from its pad, rising gracefully and strong from the Cape Canaveral launching site on a tall of orange flame.

Just 33 days before, another Jupiter-C had risen in the same way to boost Explorer I, the first U. S. satellite, into orbit around the earth.

It came after the Soviet Union had established a two-satellite monopoly in space.

Today's launching seemed perfect and the radio signals from the rising four-stage Jupiter-C rocket sounded normal as they were flashed back to the Army scientists in a blockhouse at the Cape.

The Jupiter-C climbed straight into an overcast Florida sky, and was hidden by the 5,000-foot clouds just 27 seconds after it blasted off. In 90 seconds even the thunderous sound of the rocket was out of hearing range.

Below in the drift of the Jupiter-C's smoke was the Navy's Vanguard rocket, standing in its gantry and waiting for its satellite-launching attempt, expected some time this week.

Heavy Rain In Hawaii

HONOLULU, March 5 (AP)—A rainstorm dumped eight to 10 inches of water on the Hawaiian Islands today. The Weather Bureau warned the situation might get worse.

Judge Orders Trial In Depot Case

SCRANTON, March 5 (AP)—A Philadelphia painting contractor, his superintendent and his company must stand trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government, U. S. District Judge John W. Murphy ruled today.

Judge Murphy acted in the case of John B. Kemmel, the contractor; Frank P. Laurelli, the superintendent and the Kemmel Company, all indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of defrauding the government of $98,000. The fraud allegedly was perpetrated in connection with a sub-contract for painting during the construction of the $33 million dollar Army Signal Corps depot at Tobyhanna.

Others Named

Six other defendants were named in the indictment, including Rep. William J. Green, Philadelphia Democratic city chairman and former Rep. Herbert J. McGlinchey of Philadelphia.

Laurelli was convicted of bribery and perjury last September. He is free on bail pending a decision on his plea for a new trial.

Judge Murphy set not date for the trial.

Colleges To Be Used In Emergencies

HARRISBURG, March 5 (AP)—Twenty state teachers colleges and universities in rural areas will be pressed into service as emergency hospitals in the event of an enemy attack on Pennsylvania.

Dr. Arthur B. Walsh, coordinator of medical CD in the state Health Department, said the state now has 49 so-called portable hospitals in storage and has requested 51 more from federal officials.

Each emergency unit has 200 folding cots, folding operating tables, portable field X-ray machines, surgical instruments and anesthetic equipment.

Breakdown

Dr. Walsh gave his breakdown of planned hospital space should an enemy attack come: State teachers colleges, 14,000 patients; Allegheny College, 5,000; Bucknell University, 10,000; Lycoming College, 5,000; Pennsylvania State University, 50,000; Seton Hall College, 5,000; and Susquehanna University, 5,000.

In addition, the state would provide space for 391,000 patients in state mental hospitals and tuberculosis sanatoria.

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College is already working with Civil Defense.

Fred Waring Chairman Of Easter Seals

RAYMOND GUYTON, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Guyton, of Altoona, is Pennsylvania's 1958 Easter Seal Child. He was chosen to represent all handicapped boys and girls in the Keystone State in the annual Easter Seal campaign that begins today and ends Easter Sunday.

Smiling, talkative, bright and full of energy, despite his crippling condition, Raymond will be featured in the campaign.

Already he has been to New York City where he was photographed with Fred Waring, native Pennsylvanian and famed orchestra and choral director.

Waring, owner of Shawnee Inn and Country Club, is honorary chairman for the campaign and already has given much of his time and talent to the cause.

Treatment

Raymond is one of the handicapped boys and girls receiving treatment through the ministrations of the Blair County Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., an affiliate of the Pennsylvania Society.

He is the third child in a family of four children and weighed less than four pounds at birth. He made slow progress for at least a year, but then his condition began to improve and this has continued.

In mid-1954 he was diagnosed by experts as a spastic cerebral palsy child, was given short leg braces and a routine exercise program. A quadriplegic cerebral palsy boy he has little walking ability at this time, although improving. He has good articulation for his condition. Curious and pleasant, he has decided determination to establish his own independence. He received long leg braces in early 1955, walks well in parallel bars and takes a few steps alone or with crutches.

Easter Seals will be mailed to all residents of Monroe County within a matter of days and returns are asked to be forwarded to the Monroe County Crippled Children's Assn. as soon as possible.

The entire campaign will be carried out by mail.

Nelson Westbrook is county chairman for the Easter Seal Campaign. Mrs. Roman Batory is association president.

Size Of Classes
Major Issue In Modern Education

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles on Monroe County education. Each will be based on the results of the county-wide survey conducted by the author for The Daily Record.

By Leonard Randolph

THERE is little disagreement between classroom teachers and administrators (principals or superintendents) in the area of the gifted child.

Both feel that the size of classes is the biggest drawback in the identification and instruction of the more able child. When it comes to recommending ideal class size, there are slight differences of opinion, but both categories agree that classes should be limited to less than 30 children—preferably 25 or less.

Both agree that testing is a valuable tool in the process of special education for the talented child.

Both groups appear to agree, basically, that identification and special training of the gifted should begin fairly early in the school career.

Here are a few answers from administrators to the first question in The Daily Record survey on identification and training of the more able child:

"To train such children properly, adequate facilities and materials must be available so that the gifted child can explore problems. These would include: (1) a good library in the child's own building; (2) adequate learning aids such as maps, globes, scientific apparatus; (3) provision for trips outside the school in order to observe and ask questions."

"Testing should begin in the third or fourth grade and when a good student is found, he should be placed in a class which includes students of the same ability. This same grouping can be used to place students of poor ability, average ability and superior ability."

"We must provide facilities so a teacher will have not more than 20 to 25 children in each of the first four grades. This will give her a chance for individual instruction and attention so badly needed by beginners. Little children need a lot of attention."

"Class size should be held at 20 to 24 pupils. This will help in better identification of all pupils and will permit the teacher to enrich the program of the gifted. Another method of improving the instruction for the gifted is to accelerate or 'skip' them (promote them into advanced classes in the regular curriculum). Foreign languages, elementary algebra, plane geometry and general science should be given the gifted much earlier than is now the practice."

"More able students can be identified by tests, school records, and by teacher opinions. In my opinion, the best way to challenge them is to group them by ability and give them superior teachers."

"Make sure that all beginning children have an intelligence test and a psychological examination by a trained psychologist. At intervals of not more than two years, the youngsters should have a group intelligence

Deductions Major Issues In Filing Taxes

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the final article in a series of articles on federal income tax filing. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants, in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service.

THE BIG question facing the small taxpayer at this time is whether to itemize deductions or take the standard deduction.

Before you give up and file a "short" form, take the time to add up the family expenses that could be deducted. If the deductions that could be itemized total more than 10 per cent of your adjusted gross income, it will pay you to file a "long" Form 1040.

Here is a list of the more important items to watch for while you compile the list of a family's deductions:

Interest on Loans — The interest you paid on loans is deductible. This includes any mortgage, automobile, appliance, home improvement or personal loans you may have had. Interest on installment purchases is also deductible. Evidence, such as a statement from the seller, should be obtained to show the amount of interest that you paid during the year.

State and Local Taxes — Most taxes, other than federal taxes, are deductible. These include, state and local real estate, personal property, income, retail sales, gasoline and poli-taxes. You can deduct auto license fees, but not auto inspection fees. If you don't have an exact record of some of these taxes, you can make a reasonable estimate.

Charitable Contributions — Gifts to charitable, religious, educational, scientific or literary organizations are deductible. Generally, these contributions are deductible up to 20 per cent (in some cases 30 per cent) of your adjusted gross income. In adding up your donations, don't overlook the old clothes, toys, books or furniture you may have contributed to a local charity or church. The fair market value of these gifts is deductible.

Medical and Dental Expenses — Unless you or your wife has reached the age of 65, your medical expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income. Include in your medical deduction the cost of doctor, nursing dentist's X-rays, and hospital services. You may also deduct premiums for health, accident and medical insurance.

Casualty Losses — You are entitled to deduct your uninsured home losses from fire, theft or storm. Damage to an automobile is deductible if the accident was due to faulty driving but not negligence on your part.

Child Care Expenses — Widowed, divorced or legally separated taxpayers, and in some cases any taxpayer, who must pay for the care of a dependent while they work can deduct up to $600 of this expense. Check carefully the requirements in the official instruction book before claiming a "baby-sitter" deduction.

Miscellaneous Deductions — If you had certain expenses in connection with your employment (other than travel and reimbursed expenses), you may claim them as miscellaneous deductions. Examples would be tools, uniforms, union dues and employment agency fees. "Periodic" alimony or separate maintenance payments ordered by the court are also deductible under this heading.

Christians Indebted To Matthew For Gospel Version

"And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom; and he saith unto him, Follow me." —Matthew IX:9

By Patrick and Harrison
MATTHEW, originally called Levi, was a native of Galilee, but Scripture does not say of which city, nor of which tribe of Israel.

Although a Jew, he apparently enjoyed the confidence of the Romans, whom he served as a publican or tax collector. His job was that of collecting duties and fees from persons and commodities that passed over the Sea of Galilee, or along the portion of Damascus road that skirted it.

After Jesus called him to be an apostle, Matthew, who was evidently a man of means, gave a feast at his home. In addition to Jesus, who was probably guest of honor, he invited others of disciples as well as several publicans and friends.

His idea in giving such a banquet would appear to be twofold: to mark the end of one way of life and the beginning of a new way as a disciple of Jesus; and to give his former companions an opportunity to know something of the new Gospel that had changed his life.

Matthew's personal stature grows when seen in the perspective of his personal life and environment prior to his meeting Jesus: a man of education and wealth, the handler of money—that symbol of materialism and worldly greed—he had only to be hidden, "Follow me," and he turned his back resolutely and finally upon the past.

After the Ascension, Matthew remained in Jerusalem with the other Apostles. On the day of Pentecost, according to the Scriptural account, he received the gift of the Holy Spirit.

Christians are greatly indebted to Matthew for his version of the Gospel, in which he carefully preserved the words and parables of Jesus.

The Bible does not tell how long Matthew remained in Judea after the Ascension, but a fifth-century church historian relates that he was martyred in Ethiopia, where he had gone as a Christian missionary.

Department Okays Scale

HARRISBURG, March 5 (AP)—The state Labor and Industry Department today tentatively approved minimum wage scales ranging up to one dollar an hour for some 250,000 women and minors employed in Pennsylvania's retail sales industry.

William L. Batt Jr., department secretary, said final approval of the rates recommended by a special 9-member study group was withheld pending further public hearings on the proposals March 20.

Schedule
The minimum wage regulations are scheduled to become effective May 26 to mark the first time in Pennsylvania history such workers will be brought under minimum wage regulations.

Batt emphasized that the three of the study committee members representing the industry declined to sign the report recommending the wage scale regulations.

"The industry representatives agreed with the representatives of the workers and the public that the minimum was needed but they disagreed on zone and time schedule provisions for making it effective," Batt explained.

Reason For Greatness

A lot of things have been said about the wonders of the great American retail market. It is so big, so expansive, so free in the flow of goods.

Statistics are hardly necessary to substantiate the most glowing appraisal of America as a place in which to do business. But there's one aspect of it which many of us may not think about very often.

The United States is a great trading area not merely because it is big and free and growing. It is that because it is a place where people buy the same things again and again and again.

In numerous parts of the world few people can afford to buy an automobile at all. In other spots it is like buying a home. Once you've got one, that's it.

However, here in the United States with 65,000,000 motor vehicles on the road, we count it a poor year when we sell less than five million new cars.

It is the same with refrigerators, radios, television sets, furniture and a host of other major items. Things aren't normal unless we keep coming back for new models.

It's our replacement market that keeps this nation busy and thriving. How busy and how thriving depends on how regularly we trade in the old models for the new and very latest.

Selection Of Federal Judges

The most common complaint about the selection of federal judges is that presidents almost always choose members of their own political party.

Some such emphasis is in the nature of things, and short of a law setting percentages, which is unlikely, hope for lessening it lies mainly in choosing presidents who will rise above party in performing this duty.

But a resolution by some of the nation's leading lawyers, now pending in the American Bar Assn., brings forth another major criticism of the ethics in the present selection process.

It refers to the President's reliance on his attorney general to recommend names for judicial appointment. Yet the government itself, through the attorney general, is the chief litigant before these same judges, who may have him to thank for their seats.

Actual motivations, to be sure, are rarely if ever as crude as that, and many other factors enter in. Names come in from local lawyers and politicians, the senators from the state where the seat is located must be acquiescent at least, the whole Senate must confirm. And President Eisenhower has usually been receptive to American Bar Assn. guidance on names under consideration.

Still the central role of the attorney general, and his leading influence in the last analysis, make the arrangement less than ideal ethically. And this defect is more readily correctable. The resolution proposes an independent commission as the agency to originate suggestions to the President and to advise him in his choices.

Since the power is his alone, this device would still depend on his right spirit in using it. But it would be a brash president who would ignore such body, and it should be an improvement worth making. Its operation might incidentally minimize the factor of party affiliation also.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Who Makes Decisions

Orderly government is the product of long trial and error, resulting in a system which is understood by those who work with it and is generally accepted. Our system is outlined in the Constitution, is implemented by acts of Congress and the decisions of the courts, particularly the Supreme Court.

It is an interesting system because it permits the greatest degree of human liberty by deliberately sacrificing the power of the government to rule by fiat, which has usually been the method of rulers. Instead, the Constitution established a system of checks and balances so that absolute power is lodged nowhere and in no person.

That such a system should have survived so long is remarkable, because the looseness of authority makes for waste and inefficiency. It also gives ample opportunity for political racketeers to abuse the opportunities that are open to them.

Only in time of war have Americans consented to the application of extraordinary powers by the President. Unfortunately World War II never quite ended. It has continued into what is for convenience called the "Cold War," a political extension of a war of balance and attribution. This "Cold War," in its current phase, is marked by a contest in the production of new weapons which are themselves novel applications of newly-revealed scientific principles.

Defense Against Missiles There are those who continue to comfort themselves with tales of Russian thefts of American secret formulae, a comfort which true or untrue is now of no political significance. The fact is that Soviet Russia, if not absolutely equal to us in this field, is not far behind.

Should it be proved, as it well might be, that Russian submarines off the coast of Florida caused American submarines to fail, it can only be that they already have a device of defense against rockets and missiles, and therefore are ahead of us.

If the Russians get far ahead of us in this field, it will be argued that we must change our system of government, as some now want to change our system of education to meet the enemy. In a word, there will be those who will attribute our failure, should we fail, to a loose system of government in which individual liberty is regarded as more valuable than governmental efficiency.

Already in the time of Franklin D. Roosevelt, because of depression and war, there were those who set the Presidency apart as a sacerdotal office, with the President as a sort of man-god, a deus ex machina that could solve all problems with perfection of wisdom.

Harry Truman was too human for such a conception and it looked as though it might disappear with him, but it returned with Eisenhower, the very Republicans who had criticized Roosevelt as an absolutist, seeking such perfection in Eisenhower.

However, no matter how popular the President remained, he could not transfer such popularity to Sherman Adams and Jim Hagerty who look and act very human, indeed, and often exceed constitutional authority.

In the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee's hearings, the testimony in which I am now engaged in reading, time after time, the question of authority arises. General Twining's outburst in his debate with Senator Symington is most interesting, because therein lies both a criticism and an objective view of our problem.

The issue is a clear one. Congress votes the appropriations. It needs to know what it is voting for. It needs to know whether there is an honest administration of funds voted; whether enough or too much money is voted and what is accomplished thereby.

That is constitutionally the function of Congress. To this challenge of this function, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, General Nathan Twining, replied:

" . . . I will give you all the information you want, and the witnesses will give you all the information you want, but you should not bring them back and say, 'Is this adequate?' after the decision has been made.

"In the military terminology, a commander makes a decision and if everybody starts bickering it is just no good, you have no military."

Doctor's Dilemma

The Pennsylvania Story

Strategists Squirm

By Mason Denison Harrisburg — Pennsylvania Democrats themselves may well be on the way to throwing their own campaign chances down the drain this Fall.

The possibility is such that it has top party strategists in an uncomfortable squirm.

Basically they are concerned with the primary races that has marked their efforts to date.

Unquestionably it has produced already some rather painful tid-bits their Republican counterparts have been quick to note and absorb.

Illustration: Lt. Gov. Roy E. Furman, who has put up a spirited effort in behalf of the Democratic gubernatorial nod, dropped this comment the other day in a Leader tear-down:

"I have always suspected that Governor Leader and others are using the good-government theme to push their own unilateral dream of a political empire."

This is the sort of music GOP old pols have been listening intently to hear played.

This is the theme that has been right down their alley.

Held Back This is the theme they have wanted to develop — but have been held back by lack of any firm tie-in point.

They have it now in the form of a direct quote from a large size Democrat himself.

Importance of the point lies in the fact that the 1958 gubernatorial campaign is destined to be anchored primarily around the record of the Democratic Leader Administration.

That will be the focal point in the months to come.

Interestingly, the heated degree with which the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor have gone after each other, although in theory in the same political camp, is indeed a flashback to some twenty years ago.

In those dying days of the last Democratic administration of Governor George H. Earle, one of the upsetting factors for Democrats unsuccessfully seeking a return bid to the State House, unquestionably centered around the bitter and acrimonious in-fighting among Democrats squabbling over the spoils.

It was that tug of war nearly a quarter century ago that pitted Democrat against Democrat with one expose and tear-down following another — and plunged the donkey riders into a moral abyss from which it took them twenty years to emerge.

Is there destined to be a repetition of this fateful course of events in 1958?

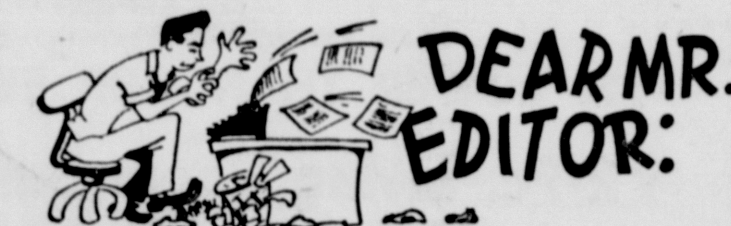

It is doubtful if it will reach the peak attained previously. Power factions are riding hard in Democratic ranks this year.

The disgruntled element, which has served as a sore netting spot in the hide of the Leader Administration holds the key.

Around Capitol Hill it is not regarded as likely the "outs" will carry it to quite the extreme they did the last time they occupied the executive suite.

Nevertheless, the fires already have been kindled. GOP strategists in shaping their campaign on knocking down what they like to call the "Leader Administration good government myth" have been given a valuable assist — inadvertently perhaps — by Mr. Furman.

It is significant to note that many another top Democratic leader has kept a stiff upper lip so far in this respect — although bursting at the seams as pressure builds up.

Praises Coverage

204 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, Pa.

Dear Editor:

As you know interest in education is at its peak in the history of America. It has been of primary concern to President Eisenhower, Governor Leader, state legislators, school teachers, administrators and parents, as well as children.

Needless to say, all PTA members are overjoyed at the interest that the citizens of Monroe County are showing in education. We are further greatly pleased with the wonderful education articles which have been appearing in The Daily Record and we do commend you for same.

At the last Monroe County PTA meeting (which represents over 2,000 members) it was voted that we urge The Daily Record to have a regular education column which would be to inform the public of school laws, interesting activities in the schools of Monroe County, school costs, etc.

We feel that this would be a worthwhile service to the county as a whole, and do trust that you will give this matter deep consideration.

Free Gold Cache Held By U. S.

By Robert S. Allen Washington, March 5 — The U. S. Treasury has a huge cache of gold of its own — over and above those billions of the yellow metal buried at Fort Knox, Ky.

This interesting fact came to light during the Senate debate over temporarily increasing the national debt limit to $280 million. Senator Harry Byrd (D., Va.), chairman of the Finance Committee, told about this "free gold" in his unavailing fight against the Administration's $5 billion debt hike.

Following are highlights of this unpublished discussion:

Senator Byrd: "When I submitted by amendment for a $3 billion debt increase, my calculations involved the use of the free gold held by the Treasury. The Treasury estimates the gold from this gold would be $500,000,000. When Mr. Humphrey was Secretary of the Treasury, there was $1 billion of this so-called free gold. He sold $500,000,000 of it."

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.): "Will the Senator explain further about this $500,000,000 of unused gold? Does he mean it is a cash balance?"

Byrd: "No, it is actually gold. The Treasury can use the gold whenever it desires, and the proceeds can be added to the cash balance of the Treasury."

Saltonstall: "In other words, this $500,000,000 in gold is kept in the Treasury, and is not considered in connection with the question of whether there should be an increase in the debt limit?"

Byrd: "It is gold which can be exchanged for cash, through the Federal Reserve. Only the other day, $100,000,000 of this gold was used, so the remainder is now actually only $400,000,000. My contention is that there is no necessity to retain this gold, which is entirely separate from the other gold (at Fort Knox)."

Saltonstall: "In other words it should be used."

Byrd: "Yes. By using this gold, we would avoid paying interest on money which otherwise will have to be borrowed."

There Will Be Work On Roads

Our recent snow and heavy rains are taking their toll on many of our township roads and borough streets.

This combination, coupled with detours and unexpected heavy traffic, have been tough on roadways. The weather and traffic have worn holes in the pavement, which in turn has made driving very difficult and dangerous.

But, it should help the unemployment situation in the Spring.

Pennsylvania Dutch Column

Readers Comment

Retaining and reflecting recognizable characteristic elements of Pennsylvania Dutch habit and vocabulary is the intent of this column. The many welcome notes and remarks provide a yardstick for determining reader concern.

Each week new folks join the growing cluster of those for whom our writing has appeal. Since the first appearance last October, many helpful suggestions have come from every direction. Much of the comment is choice.

From Gilbert . . . relative to and illustrating a feather. It was during the Community Chest campaign, meaning to be helpful, when we wrote in the dialect and translated, "This is the Red Feather. Give Enough." The comment, "Who wants Red Feathers?"

From Brodheadville . . . "I know you because you are in the drug store. You don't talk like you write. Sometimes you laugh and other times you are sour. You remind me like a fox dressed up like a sheep and also a little dumb. I don't make out all of your words in the paper. Can you send me a picture of you. I don't like the one where you wear a cap." Complimenting your request, a picture especially for you, appears in the upper left of this column.

From Saylorsburg . . . "Where did you ever learn Dutch? What in the (blank) is a Maitre d'?" Unquote. The word was used to inject humor with the Dutch writing of Richard Mellick of the Town Tavern.

From Box 46, Kresgeville . . . Mail addressed to Duckder Hexawahlzeit Eiseborrdt reached me. The word Hexawahlzeit is quite appropriate when associated with Eiseborrdt. Translated it means Hexroot Ironbeard. Thank you, Raymond Andrews. Now I have a first name.

From Allentown . . . "My dear Duckder Eiseborrdt: I read your Pennsylvania Dutch Column entitled Sugar Valley in The Daily Record. Your article concerning Philip Kishpaugh was most interesting to me. I knew him well and all his idiosyncrasies. I especially liked that description of him where you end up by saying that he had a conservativeness for using soap and water." I, too, have a copy of the famous newspaper entitled The Valley View.

"In there I find the following: Our History. In the year 1903, some time about the first of November, the Valley View made its first appearance, printed on a Kelsey press. Only one page was printed then. It was found to be almost too small to appear before the public, it being about the size of one of the pages of the Annual Star.

"What is old and what is new. See them in the Valley View. Have you headache, heartache, too. Just you take the Valley View. Are you sorry, feeling blue. Only see the Valley View. Lovely ladies sweet and true. They all read the Valley View. From the pulpit and the pew, Hear about the Valley View.

Judge Gearhart has many relatives in the west end of Monroe County. He is serving a third term as Orphans Court Judge of Lehigh County. He makes and keeps friends wherever he goes. He is very well known to the legal profession of the Commonwealth. His opinions in fiduciary matters are cited as, and in appeals, considered law. This unassuming, tried, great judge would make Pennsylvania's best governor, and could be elected overwhelmingly. Actually he is material for the United States Supreme Court.

Here is the poem E. R. Gearhart wrote in 1903 for The Valley View: "In McMichael's skies are blue, There they print the Valley View. Bright sunshine and morning dew, Are around the Valley View. Joys a plenty, sorrows few, There you'll find the Valley View. "What is old and what is new. See them in the Valley View. Have you headache, heartache, too. Just you take the Valley View. Are you sorry, feeling blue. Only see the Valley View. Lovely ladies sweet and true. They all read the Valley View. From the pulpit and the pew, Hear about the Valley View.

You're Telling Me

Students of Glasgow University pelted Richard A. Butler, Britain's deputy prime minister, with eggs, rotten fruit, tomatoes, dust "bombs" and paper bags of flour as he made a speech on atomic energy. It was quite a fallout.

Red China's gunners must have learned how to shoot by watching TV westerns. After a prolonged shelling of Quemoy Island it was reported no one was hurt.

"It was then kept quiet for a short time and on or about the 15th of December it appeared before the public in mourning, having lost its first born, and was here in this thriving United States of America all alone. No one to own a copy. But in January, 1904, it came out again with five subscribers to start on its life's journey, which it is to be hoped may be a very long one."

"At the end of the first year it had made 150 everlasting friends and now at the end of the second year, it can proudly boast of having over 300 friends and we hope to keep them for years to come. It is now in the third year of its happy journey—1906."

"Contained in this prodigious copy of The Valley View is a contribution by my old grandfather, E. R. Gearhart. It is a poem; a copy of which is enclosed."

"Before closing, I must relate an anecdote which I heard as a small boy. The Valley View was not above treading on the toes of certain characters in the neighborhood, that is to say, it would get into their private affairs, such as love affairs and other escapades."

"The result was that the great paper, The Valley View, was sued for libel and sending scurrilous matter through the United States Mail and was brought to trial in the Federal Courts at Scranton. Philip being the character that he was, had a number of friends in the legal profession, who in the spirit of burlesque decided to go to Scranton to represent him."

"When the case was brought up, the presiding judge called for a copy of the newspaper. The little pamphlet was handed to him and the judge, with an outburst of laughter, declared that this was a joke on the court."

"Sensing the humor in the situation, he discharged Kishpaugh with his galaxy of attorneys to pursue the evils of his way in and about McMichael's." Cordially, Ethan Allen Gearhart, president judge, Orphans Court, Lehigh County.

Judge Gearhart has many relatives in the west end of Monroe County. He is serving a third term as Orphans Court Judge of Lehigh County. He makes and keeps friends wherever he goes. He is very well known to the legal profession of the Commonwealth. His opinions in fiduciary matters are cited as, and in appeals, considered law. # Stroudsburg Council Appoints Discussion Committee

Conference Slated With Commission

By Don Allen

A TWO-MAN committee to meet with Monroe County Commissioners to determine how much money the commission will put up for flood control work here was named last night at a meeting of Stroudsburg Borough Council.

Edward R. Lawson, council president, named Burgess Edward A. Doran and Councilman William Schroeder to meet with the commissioners.

The county commission has indicated that it will participate in local financing of the project on Broadheads and McMichael's Creeks, but has not specified the amount of its participation.

Lawson acted after a letter from Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, was read in which he said:

"I regret to advise we cannot make any additional money available to cover the cost of utility relocations."

Relocation

Involved is approximately $71,000 for relocation of lines of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

In a letter dated Feb. 6 and written at the direction of council, Borough Manager Harold Snyder told Goddard that Stroudsburg is willing to participate in financing the project to the limit of its ability, but that the local costs, including PP and L's lines, are beyond the borrowing capacity of the borough.

Snyder's letter did not request additional state aid, although Goddard wrote, "I have reviewed your request that the department allocate additional funds to cover relocation costs." Goddard said his department is ready assuming approximately $180,000 in costs "usually allocated to the sponsor of the project."

He included among the total $40,000 for installation of an intercepter sewer, $60,000 for pumping facilities for sewage in McMichael's Creek; $20,000 for "furnishing borrow areas for embankment material and rock riprap" for levees in both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg; and $60,000 for a bridge over Sabo Creek in East Stroudsburg.

Lawson, pointing out that council had agreed it could participate if its share was not more than $35,000, said he felt the borough "has gone as far as it can." No action was taken on Goddard's letter.

Extra Patrolman

Approved appointment of an extra patrolman during Summer vacation months and set his pay rate of $1.75 an hour. The action was taken at the request of Burgess Doran.

Awarded to Haynes Motors, Inc., the contract for a new police car at a net price, including trade in of $840.50. Other bidders were B. E. Weber, $975, and Scheller and Kitchen, $940. Awarded to Stroudsburg Garage the contract for a new two and one-half ton truck at a bid of $3,900. Other bidders were Haynes Motors, Inc., $4,700; Tucker Chevrolet, $4,880; B. E. Weber, $3,907.05, and E. M. Rinehart, $4,237.25.

Authorized advertisement for bids for fuel oil and chlorine requirements for sewage treatment works, both to be returned at the April 2 meeting.

Adopted a $5 per capita tax for residents.

Tabled until the April meeting adoption of the 1958 budget and real estate tax levy because two members of Council were not present at last night's session.

Stroudsburg Lions Club Forwards Gift To Similar Organization Located In Greece

WILLIAM LIVADAS, florist and member of the Stroudsburg Lions Club, presented a dinner going, a gift from the local organization, to the Athens, Greece, Lions Club.

Local Lion President J. Joseph McCluskey made the announcement of the gift at the Tuesday meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Livadas is on an extended vacation in Athens.

A letter of thanks from P. A. Xanthopoulos, president of the Athens Lions was read by Secretary Al Caldwell.

Robert Oliver, of the Pennsylvania Mental Health Assn., was the guest speaker. He stated that Pennsylvania is among the foremost in the treatment of its mentally ill.

There are 17 state-financed hospitals in the Keystone State. The daily patient expenditure in Pennsylvania has risen from $2.60 to $4 but this amount is still insufficient. The Veterans Administration spends between $9 and $18.

"The stigma once attached to mental illness," Oliver pointed out, "is gradually being eliminated. But more educational work must be done for the public to accept the person with mental disorders on a plane with physical illnesses."

A survey by a reputable organization indicates that one person out of 10 is affected to a degree by some form of mental illness. If there were enough funds and sufficient personnel, most of these people could be treated and cured without hospitalization, or at most, treatment in a local general medical and surgical hospital.

Oliver stated that until 1955 the trend in the hospitalization and treatment of the mentally ill had been upward. Since then it has been on the decline, due to improvement in techniques and the introduction of new drugs.

Program Director John Regan announced that the speaker for the March 11 meeting will be Lemuel Kennedy. His subject will be "County Assessment." He will be the guest of Dr. James Gavin.

Little Gaelic Singers Win Warm Praise For Performance At College Auditorium

By Leonard Randolph

DON'T look now, but the Irish just conquered Monroe County. From now on, you may probably consider Stroudsburg a suburb of County Derry and East Stroudsburg just another part of County Cork.

Last night Pocono Community Concerts presented The Little Gaelic Singers of County Derry at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College. It was the finest piece of entertainment by a vocal group and the most purely enjoyable program of its kind that I have ever seen.

The Gaelic Singers were totally lacking in ostentation and artificiality. They are a group of utterly charming children with beautifully untainted, direct and lyrical singing voices. They can also dance better than any group of young people have a right to. They perform both functions in their concert appearances in a completely unspoiled manner.

But the concert was highly deceptive, for all that. Take this matter of simplicity. Everything that happened onstage at the college auditorium appeared to be happening effortlessly. Yet it was the most skillfully produced and directed performance by a chorus within memory.

Thanks to their director and accompanist, James McCafferty, the children have excellent arrangements and their voices have been trained to sing together, as a unit, with remarkable precision without sacrificing emotion or mood.

Brendan DeGlin is the dance director and dance soloist and his job has been masterfully performed, also. Neil Carlin is the baritone soloist and his voice makes a near-perfect balance for the high-pitched and tender beauty of the children's singing.

DeGlin and McCafferty have not been content to put together a group of good singers and ignore the fact that they are using a stage for their production, however. More than any other group of this kind, the Gaelic Singers are conscious of stage movement, its uses, its potential power in lending atmosphere and adding meaning to what is being sung.

At times, last night (particularly during "The Kerry Dance" and in the purely vocal "Gartan Mothers' Lullaby") the auditorium stage sprang to full life as completely as if a patterned, formal but tremendously beautiful ballet were being executed.

Kiwanis Club Views Film On Oil Storage

A COLORED sound film showing how fuel oil is stored in an abandoned slate quarry at Wind Gap was presented yesterday at the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club meeting in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

The program chairman was Fred W. Kegley, district manager for Esso Standard Oil Co., pioneer firm in the development of below-the-surface oil storage.

Two adjacent quarries were purchased by the company more than three years ago and the larger one, with a capacity of 42,000,000 gallons, was converted to a reservoir for heating oil.

The oil floats on a lake of water, the level of which is maintained by pumping water from or into the smaller quarry.

70-Mile Pump

Oil is pumped into the quarry from the Bayway refinery at Linden, N.J., a distance of about 70 miles, via a six-inch pipeline. Oil enters the pit at the rate of about 250,000 gallons a day during the Summer and is withdrawn for shipment back to the refinery at about 400,000 gallons daily for distribution in the peak demand season. The reservoir also serves as a supply center for the company's fuel oil distributors in six area counties.

Kegley said the firm has purchased or holds under options on a total of nine quarries, six of which will hold a total of 336,000,000 gallons of oil. The other three are water reservoirs.

Before the seven undeveloped quarries can be made ready, Kegley said, new and larger pipelines will have to be built between the refinery and Wind Gap.

Slate, he noted, is inert and therefore has no chemical effect on heating oil. Wind Gap was chosen as the site of Esso's underground storage experiment because of its proximity to an existing pipeline and to the refinery, also because the great size of the abandoned quarries offered more advantages than other possible sites.

The quarry now in use measures 250 by 350 feet and ranges up to 225 feet deep.

Burglaries Reported At Two Stroudsburg Business Places

BURGLARIES at two business places on Stroudsburg's "south side" were reported to borough police yesterday.

Four dollars in cash and 14 cartons of cigarettes were taken from Ackerman's Market, 125 Broad St.

Paul Ackerman, owner, said the theft occurred sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 7:50 a.m. yesterday when it was discovered by Jess Macintosh, an employee. Entry was gained through a basement window on the north side.

Leave Ice Cream

Ackerman said the intruders took a pint of ice cream from a freezer, ate half of it and left the rest on the floor.

A wrist watch, an electric razor and a small amount of tax money was taken from the Tom Williams Service Station, 103 Park Ave.

Williams discovered the theft at 5:15 a.m. Entry was gained through a rear window which had been boarded up after an earlier burglary attempt.

Arthur Frey

Arthur Frey Speaks At Valley Forge

SOUTH STERLING — "Preparation for College and the Future" was the topic on which Arthur Frey spoke at the annual banquet of the Valley Forge Military Junior College at Wayne, Delaware County, this week.

Speaking at the Valley Forge House to 200 cadets, Frey was introduced by Col. William J. Carne, dean of the junior college.

The banquet was originally scheduled for Feb. 20, but was postponed because of weather conditions to this week.

The son of Mrs. Lydia Frey and the late Charles Frey, Arthur is a native of South Sterling, where his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather have directed the operation of Frey Funeral Home for the past 75 years.

Honorary Member

Graduated Summa Cum Laude from Valley Forge Junior College in June, 1957, he was an honorary member of the Anthony Wayne Legion Guard, president of Phi Theta Kappa, an honorary scholastic fraternity; secretary of the junior college; editor of Crossed Sabres, the yearbook; secretary of the Stephen Foster Honor Society; and winner of the Dunaway Debate in 1956.

He entered Valley Forge on a band scholarship, and played flute and piccolo with the concert band, and bass drum with the Valley Forge Military Band, a marching unit. He was with the well-known musical organization, directed by Major D. Keith Feltham, when it was chosen to play in the presidential inaugural parade in 1956.

He was also soloist with the chapel choir.

Honor Student

A 1955 graduate of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint High School, Newfoundland, he was an honor student, winning the American Legion award presented annually by Phillips-Zacharias-Phillips Post 859, to the outstanding boy in the senior class; he was band president; local student council president; president of the Wayne County Student Council; president of the senior class; and played varsity basketball.

He represented Pennsylvania as one of two State delegates at Boys' Nation in Washington, D. C., in 1954.

At present, he is associated in business at the Frey Funeral Home, and is serving as junior advisor of the Methodist Youth Fellowship here.

CD Ready For Action In Dreher

NEWFOUNDLAND — "Continuing readiness" for any emergency is reported by Dreher Township Civil Defense Director E. Elmore Haag, who emphasized here this week that there is no need for apprehension as the east and west branches of the Wallenpaupack Creek and the Paupack Creek remain quite as the deep snow melts gradually.

The creeks have risen slightly, but are not threatening in any way, he pointed out.

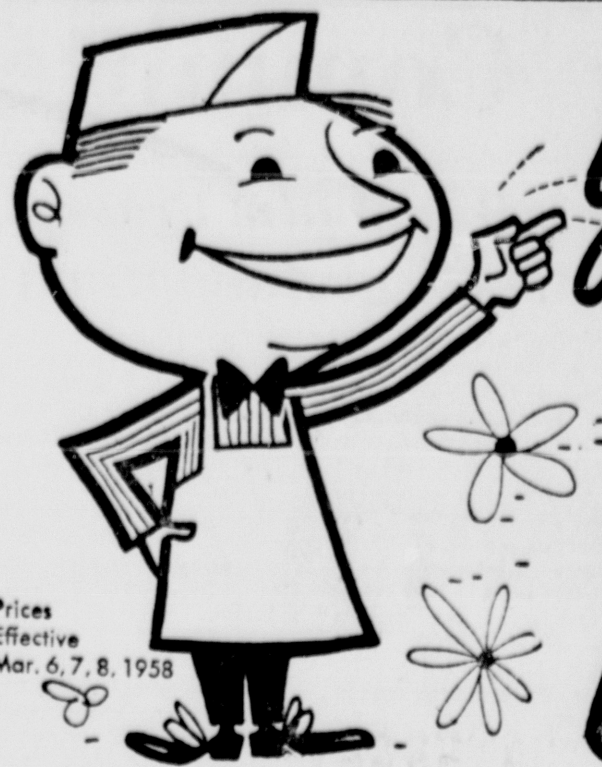

All equipment, including short wave radio, is prepared for use at any time as civil defense continues to operate in this area.

The past few weeks have been busy ones for the volunteers, and much credit is due to CD workers in general and the director and his wife, specifically. Dreher Township has been conducting its own relief operation, apart from that of Wayne County as a whole.

Early Days

The telephone in the Haag home in Newfoundland never stopped ringing during the early days of "Operation Snowbound." There were food and fuel drops to arrange for families in need, including the John Blasky family in Angels; Jack Barry and the Dewey Smith family on Route 196; and the Bidwell family on Route 90.

Communications were maintained at all times between Newfoundland and Monroe County units. Students and townspeople alike aided in transporting medicines and supplies and in "digging out" operations.

WASHINGTON, March 5 (AP) — Collecting miniature taxicabs is not just an idle hobby for Lt. Francis H. Dunn of the Washington Police Department.

As head of the public vehicles bureau, he keeps a fleet of miniatures painted in the identical colors of taxis operating here.

When passengers complain about a specific type of cab, or try to find personal property left in a cab, the miniatures help identify the vehicle.

THIS REPRODUCTION of the National 4-H Calendar painting typifies the pride of a 4-H boy and his parents in posting gate signs which identify them with 4-H program. Little Sister, of course, is looking forward to the year she's 10, for then she too can join a 4-H Club.

4-H Club Week Celebration Underway In Monroe County

THIS WEEK is National 4-H Club Week. It's a week of recognition for over two million 4-H club members in the United States.

What is 4-H Club work? It's a part of the national educational system of cooperative extension work, which the U. S. Department of Agriculture, State Land-Grant Colleges, and local counties share.

4-H'ers run their own clubs, elect officers, help plan meetings, and select their projects. Each club drafts its own program to suit its members and localities in which they live.

Many public-spirited men and women serve as unpaid local leaders. These leaders advise and encourage 4-H'ers in planning and carrying out projects and offering suggestions when needed.

Once devoted almost entirely to rural youth, the 4-H program is now adapting projects suitable for urban and suburban boys and girls. A large percentage of the 40,000 club members in Pennsylvania come from these heavier populated areas each year.

Two Programs
In Monroe County there are two 4-H Club programs. The Agricultural phase is coordinated by Bob Stauffer, assistant county agent. This program includes agricultural projects such as dairy, sheep, home garden, strawberries, etc. New to the agricultural program are projects which include electricity, tractor maintenance, horsemanship, automobile care and safety, woodworking, wildlife and insects.

The home economics phase conducted by Miss Margaret MacLaren, county home economist, includes projects such as cooking, sewing, outdoor cooking, baking, child development and family life.

Both programs are available to any boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 21. The main requirement is a willingness to "learn by doing", which is the 4-H Club slogan and "to make the best better", which is the club motto. Character development and good citizenship are long-range goals.

During 1957 there were 14 clubs with 226 members enrolled in club work in Monroe County. Presently, electric and tractor clubs are being organized. The home economics program will begin in mid-May and early June.

Anyone interested in 4-H Club work should contact a representative in the County Agricultural Extension Service in the Stroudsburg Post Office Building.

Commission Accredits General Hospital

GENERAL Hospital of Monroe County has once again been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals.

It is one of 4,500 hospitals of its kind which applies for accreditation. Only about 75 per cent of that number received the certification of the JCAH.

Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock, commission director, pointed out that accreditation by the commission has been likened to the name "sterling" on silver. It is a mark of distinction and it is earned only by high standards of care, Babcock said.

The Commission is an agency established by five organizations — The American College of Physicians, American College of Surgeons, American Hospital Association, American Medical Association and the Canadian Medical Association. It conducts the annual hospital survey and inspection program initiated by the American College of Surgeons in 1919. It began its own operations on Jan. 1, 1953.

Name Plans Changed

WEST FERRIS, Ont., March 5 (AP) — A new public school here was almost named for Prince Charles, nine-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth II. But the Canadian government got wind of it and the idea was dropped. The Ottawa advice is the Queen prefers that such honors be avoided until the prince is older.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

I feel better now. I guess it was a guilty conscience that made me feel so peckish. But I certainly had a lot of company, according to your comments.

On any given day, more people seem to be irritated than not, but fortunately it's not always the same people, and very seldom is it about the same thing. "My, what a beautiful day," says one person, inhaling deeply. "Oh no," groans another, "look at that mud on my nice clean porch."

"How warm it is," pants the cautious soul downtown in fur-lined boots and heavy winter coat. "Brrr!" says another turning blue in the Spring coat she was fooled into wearing by the sight of the sun.

The same day in which one woman has so much today she doesn't have time to make the beds before bed-time is the day when another spends the day wishing there was something to do around this dead town.

But speaking of things that look dead but aren't, you should try pruning around the shrubbery just now. It wasn't exactly voluntary on my part, but I dropped the house key in such a mess of tangled vines that the only way I could get it was by clearing a path for my arm, like a safari going through a jungle.

Lacking a machete, I had to use the pruning shears. Then I had to pull for all the world like a robin pulling out a worm that keeps stretching until you think it must have burrowed to China.

But on the other end of those tendrils, the end that was matted in with the grass or squinched in between the paving stones—there were leaves—green and fresh as Springtime.

Maybe that's what changed my disposition—to know that under the brown grass and dead-looking litter Spring is greening. It was a conviction I kept even during the half hour I spent getting the car unstuck from the snowbank that still garnishes the shady side of the driveway.

County Needs For Care Of Mentally Ill Outlined At Junior Woman's Club

Specific recommendations for improving the condition of Monroe County's mentally ill challenged the members of the Junior Woman's Club at their meeting on Tuesday night. Dr. Robert Oliver, area director of the Pennsylvania Mental Health, Inc., was the guest speaker.

Current urgent need is for a unit in the local hospital containing two to four beds to treat psychiatric patients in the county. As a general hospital, it should contain better facilities for care of mentally sick people, he said.

All counties should also have a social service worker, he said, who can do much in removing the stigma from the term mental illness and in helping the family adjust to the situation. Mental illness may arise from environment, heredity or chemical compounds which exist in the physical makeup, he said.

Monroe County, which has 79 patients in mental hospitals, also could use the service of occupational therapists to assist mental patients after they are discharged to home care.

At the business meeting Mrs. John Luckey and Mrs. William Rake Jr. were welcomed as new members. Mrs. Alberta Yutz was guest soloist with Mrs. Lucy Quig as accompanist.

The Wyckoff Shopper

Sitting back and observing the fashion world from the standpoint of the customer, it would seem that this is indeed a crazy, mixed up year. We read about trap-eze lines . . . the sack or chemise . . . balloon silhouettes . . . the Baby Doll look . . . the bell skirt . . . the pouf skirt . . . the sophisticated look and the look of translucent innocence. (I quote from newspaper and magazine articles.) All of this sounds terribly conflicting and intriguingly confusing. But when one boils everything down to the meat of the issue, it all adds up to a season that is delightfully varied and exciting.

My closest contact with this season's styles has been the fashion show which Wyckoff's presented Monday evening at Pen Argyl. I came away from it confidently reassured that ANYTHING goes this year . . . so long as it is becoming to the wearer; and that fashions are priced on an even keel with those of last year, despite the rising costs in almost all other phases of living.

Knowing as they do that ours is a rather conservative area in which customers demand GOOD styles but not radical ones, our buyers have done a superb job in bringing smart coats, suits, and dresses into Wyckoff's at prices suited to the customer's budget. One of the smartest ensembles shown by Mardee Albert's dress department was a slimming, straight dress of silvery gray acetate, with navy and red pattern, combined with a full length navy coat lined in the same glowing print. At only 25.00, this is, I think, an amazing proof of practicality and splendor at a price within the reach of almost every woman. Carrie Rusk's department proved the same points over and over again with both sportswear and coats.

Probably the most stunning coats in the show were Lassies, none of which were tagged above 45.00. One beautiful, gold wool Jamaica coat by this famous manufacturer, is semi-chemise in styling with a deep, rounded yoke, and an action-abetting inverted pleat, running from shoulder to waistline. Tiny bows of fabric at the lower end of the pleat, are repeated in the pocket trim. This coat is 45.00. But an equally stunning Lassy Jr. in gray wool flannel, with an over-collar of white linen, features an unusual off-center pleat which falls from a high shoulder yoke, and is held in place midway down by a gray pearl button. This is the Lassy Jr. that was featured in Seventeen. The price is only 39.98.

Many of our dresses are modified chemise styles. One very beautiful Jonathan Logan creation of pure navy silk, geometrically figured, combines a sheath, with deep rounded neckline and rather narrow shoulder straps, under a chemise blouse. But there is no set rule that one must be in a sack this year to have fashion in the bag. It is still a matter of taste and the dictates of one's figure. For the Lady in Waiting, the chemise is adorably flattering and concealing.

The colors of Spring are superb. They make you glad to be alive in a World where there is such loveliness. Bill Wells, our fashion merchandiser, refers to them as "citrus colors" . . . tones of apricot, peach, orange, lime, and—in our millinery department—a rosy strawberry or cherry. In summing it up, I'd say that this season's styles take a bit of "getting used to." But once you've developed the taste for 'em, you'll be ever so glad you drifted with the current.

11 County Youths To Take Physical

(Record Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG, March 5 — Eleven Monroe County youths will be called for a pre-induction physical examination during the month of March, State Selective Service Headquarters disclosed today.

This is the first in a new series of pre-induction physicals to be given during the next few months.

(The pre-induction physical examinations have nothing to do with the number of county youths called in the March quota.

Those passing physicals may not be drafted for several months, depending upon the number of youths to be called from the county and the reserve that has been built up. The number of Monroe County youths scheduled to be called in the March draft stands at six.

According to Selective Service, the reserve of men that have already had their examinations has become low. In order to rebuild this reserve, advance physicals are again being given.

Local board 105, Stroudsburg, will supply all 11 youths called for pre-induction physicals. Examinations will be given on March 19.

Phone 4933 East Stroudsburg

IF RAY DAVIES gets his full complement of teams, this year's Stroudsburg YMCA Senior-Junior Gold Medal Basketball Tournaments will be a real crowd-pleaser.

Such East Stroudsburg Teachers stars as Charley German, Steve Oliveri and Karl Weigner will participate along with the ESSTC student-studded Gray's Chevrolet in the senior division.

Stroudsburg High's Ted Williams and Eastburg's Dale Metzgar and Jim Kindrew will join fives in the junior phase.

It is expected that the Monroe County Scholastic League champs—Pocono Twp., will enter the junior tournament as one unit.

All in all, Davies will have the best of the area's schoolboys, collegians and amateurs performing in the "Y" spectacle.

East Stroudsburg Teachers is well blessed with top notch women coaches. In hockey, Miss Katherine Griffith pulled the strings to lead the Warriorettes to highly successful campaigns.

At the moment, Miss Ann Venezia is doing a bangup job, guiding the ESSTC lassies through a great season on the hardwoods.

This is not uncommon for Miss Venezia. Last year she coached the "Hill" girls court representatives to a fine season. Presently, the Warriorettes are 8-1 on the year and only Temple is in the way to an almost perfect year.

The lone loss suffered by Venezia's sextette was handed by Panzer. But it must be said that the Warriorettes top scorer—20 points per outing—"Hank" Boyd was snow-bound when the East Orangemen came here. ESSTC lost by 10 points and if you take Boyd's 20, it figures to a 10-point ESSTC triumph.

Bill Pensly closed the season with Elizabethtown College with 414 points. The former East Stroudsburg High shotmaker averaged 21 per game.

The Portland resident also owned two other seasonal high marks for the Bethlans, garnering 30 points against Lebanon Valley for a one-game high, and snaring 24 rebounds against Albright for the other one-game top effort.

All told, Pensly plucked off 250 rebounds to lead his mates in this department in 1957-58. He is a junior.

The 27th annual Rogers Memorial Open Class Basketball Tournament will be held at the Wilkes-Barre Central YMCA, starting Monday, March 17.

Monroe County is listed as one of the eligible territories for teams wishing to enter the Class A event. Information may be had by writing William Alter, physical director of Central YMCA, Wilkes-Barre, or phoning Wilkes-Barre VA-3-1618.

There will be another basketball vacancy in Monroe County come next season. This makes the number two of court members who will bow out this year.

The newest addition to the ranks is a tutor in the Monroe Scholastic League.

If all goes well, Dale Metzgar, East Stroudsburg High's play-making and shooting captain of this year's Cavalier five will be taking his court courses at East Stroudsburg Teachers next fall.

Warrior varsity basketball coach Dick Luce was very much impressed with Metzgar's play the few times he had the opportunity to glimpse the driving, faking Cavalier.

Marks Continue To Fall In Teachers College Loop

JOHNSTOWN, Pa.—Records continue to fall in the eight-year-old Pennsylvania State Teachers Colleges Basketball Conference.

Roger Hotz, of California, set a new season's total by scoring 42 points last weekend in season's final game against Slippery Rock to bring his ten-game score to 296 points—six points better than the mark set during the 1956-57 season by John Parker of Millersville. By scoring 42 points Hotz entered the select circle along with six others who are surpassed only by the record 47 points tallied by Don Kistler of Kutztown last year.

Hotz's 29.6 point average for ten games is one-tenth of a point short of the record set by another Californian, James Kennedy, who tallied 237 points in only eight games during the 1952-53 season. Kennedy, too, had tallied 42 points in one STC game.

German Broke Mark
Prior to the current campaign Hotz had held the foul-scoring record with 17 in one game. However, Charles German of East Stroudsburg set a new mark of 19 against Cheyney early this season. Hotz, 6-foot-5 California native, has 665 points to his credit in three STC seasons; he needs to score 290 points next season to break the record of 984 points scored in four seasons by John Parker of Millersville. The STC conference's leading scorers:

'Magnificent' STC Halts Davis, Kings, 73-59

German Steals Show From Monarch Star With 25 Points

'MAGNIFICENT' East Stroudsburg Teachers, displaying an aweing offense and an eye-opening defense, stole the show from highly publicized Jim Davis and his Kings College mates here last night as the Warriors glided beautifully to a 73-59 victory in the "Hill" gymnasium.

The game was billed as a "shooting" match between ESSTC's Charley German and Kings' All-East nominee, Jim Davis. But it was no contest as the Warriors gem, German, plastered the nets with 25 points while he and his mates held Davis to nine points, far below his 28-point per game average.

German got top billing in his individual set to with Davis. However, the play of Steve Oliveri, Mike Sentellik, Karl Weigner, John Krysa and Dewey Trautman was the greatest seen on the "Hill" court in quite some time as they took turns in padding Dick Luce's team to its 11th win in 18 games.

Except for the first minute of the game when Davis scored one of his five fouls—he had only two field goals—and tied the score at 4-4, it was all East Stroudsburg.

All Collaborated
With Krysa hitting on three long one-handers, Sentellik working the lane for three double-deckers, Oliveri sinking sets, and German driving the offense crazy with pushers and drives, the Warriors built up a 11-point edge with a minute remaining to halftime.

Joe Simons, actually King's only threat on this floor last night, came through with a one rebound two-pointer, and Jim Fulton dipped in another bank, to shave the margin to seven. But that man German hooked in a double-decker to give East Stroudsburg a 41-32 pad at halftime.

As picturesque the Warrior attack looked in the first half it was more colorful the final 20 minutes.

14-Point Spread
Oliveri, living on bounce passes to Weigner and German, set off four ESSTC scoring series that blew the host five to a 54-40 margin.

Kings made one bid midway in the stanza but only could clip off eight points to shave the spread to 59-53.

At this point, Eastburg got its second wind and fast broke Kings into the floor with Weigner, Oliveri on the front end of the attack, taking sure passes from German and Trautman. Before you knew it, ESSTC had a 20-point bulge with two minutes left.

The Warriors put on a freeze in the last 120 seconds, but not completely as Weigner snuck through the disintegrating Kings defense for a double-decker as the whistle blew.

East Stroudsburg sent three other players in the double figures with German, Oliveri and Sentellik scored 13 each, while Weigner tallied 11.

Simon led Kings, who now have a 10-9 record, with 13, followed by Tom Hoban's 12, and Jim Fulton's 10.

JV's Win 16th
East Stroudsburg's junior varsity won its 16th game in 17 outings, downing King's frosh, 79-58.

Former Stroudsburg High star Doug Shook led the Little Warriors with 25 points.

3 Pennsylvanians Head All-America Quintet

By TED MEIER
NEW YORK, March 5 (AP)—Negroes for the first time dominated the All-America basketball team selected for The Associated Press by 316 sports writers and sports broadcasters representing all sections of the nation.

There are four on the first team announced today—Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas, Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, Elgin Baylor of Seattle, and Guy Rodgers of Temple. The fifth man is Don Hennon, Pitt's little 5-8½ star.

Negroes have made the first team in the past but never more than two. The rise of Negroes to prominence in college basketball follows similar stardom in baseball, boxing, football and track.

Wilt Gets Most Votes
Chamberlain, a junior named to the A-A for the second straight year, led the voting with 1,592 points and 297 first team votes on the basis of five for a first team vote and two for a second team placing. Robertson, a sophomore who put Cincinnati back on the basketball map, was second with 1,330 and 256 firsts. Baylor was third with 1,327 and 249 firsts. Rodgers had 975 and 172 firsts and Hennon 717 and 109 firsts. No one else came near getting 100 firsts.

Bob Boozer, Kansas State's Negro star, was named on a second team along with Archie Dees, Indiana star; Bailey Howell of Mississippi State; Lloyd Sharar of West Virginia (a Meadville, Pa. native) and Pete Brennan of North Carolina.

Third Team
Jerry West, West Virginia sophomore; Tommy Kearns, North Carolina; Mike Farmer, San Francisco; Johnny Green, Michigan State and Tom Hawkins, Notre Dame, comprise a third team.

These top 15 players each will receive a certificate from The Associated Press.

Headed by Barney Cable, of Bradley; Hub Reed, Oklahoma City; Boo Ellis, Niagara; Jack Parr, Kansas State; Red Murrell, Drake; and Jack Kubiszyn, Alabama, 21 additional players received honorable mention.

Hails Hennon
Of Hennon, hailed as Pitt's best in 30 years, his coach Bob Timmons said "he has no equal in his ability to shoot or pass off the dribble without getting set. His leadership shows when the chips are down."

Oddly, three of the first team are native Pennsylvanians. Chamberlain and Rodgers are from Philadelphia while Hennon hails from Wampum, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh. Rodgers is the only senior on the first five.

North Carolina, last year's undefeated winner of the NCAA major college title, faced opening games of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament Thursday with a chance to qualify again for the NCAA playoffs. The Tar Heels, with only a 17-5 season record, trailed Duke in the regular season conference standings, but the tournament decides the champion in this league.

Wheaton (Ill.) College, which won the first NCAA college division championship last spring, rates as probable favorite in the 32-team small college tournament. Wheaton finished its regular campaign with a 24-1 record, the same as last year's, and will meet St. Norbert's of Wisconsin in a first round game at Aurora, Ill., Friday.

In addition to Wheaton, 10 colleges which played in the college division tournament last year are back again, either as winners of their conference titles or as at large selections. The 32-team field will be reduced to eight by Saturday night and the survivors will go to Evansville, Ind., for the last three rounds next week.

First round pairings for Friday include:

At Waltham, Mass.—Brandeis vs. Adelphi (N.Y.). St. Michael's vs. Rensselaer Poly (N.Y.).
At Staten Island, N.Y.—American U. vs. Buffalo, Wagner (N.Y.) vs. Philadelphia Textile.

Possible 10 Returns
If North Carolina and West Virginia come through in their conference tournaments this weekend, it will mean at least 10 of last year's NCAA major college contestants will be back in the tournament. Already qualified or invited are Connecticut, Pitt, Notre Dame, Kentucky, Idaho State, Miami (Ohio), Loyola (La.) and San Francisco.

Southern Methodist and Arkansas, which tied for the Southwest Conference title, will play off for the NCAA spot next Tuesday on a neutral court at Shreveport, La. The Big Ten, Pacific Coast and Skyline Conference races end this weekend.

Hardest Over—
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Murry Dickson, veteran highlander picked up by Kansas City as a free agent after years of service in the National League, said today the worst of spring training was over for him. It was the conditioning period.

Asked whether he had started to throw hard yet, Dickson replied: "No, I haven't. But then, you probably won't notice any difference when I do."

Skinner Predicts
FORT MYERS, Fla., March 5 (AP)—Bob Skinner, hard-hitting Pittsburgh outfielder, today confidently predicted he'll bat .340 and smash 25 home runs this season.

Skinner hit .305 last year and got 13 homers. He didn't start playing regularly in the outfield until midway in the season, switching from first base, and figures now that he's a fixture in left field the base hits and home runs will come more often.

His big ambition is to bat over .400. "I hope I can live long enough," he added with a smile.

Kinder Named Glen Brook Pro Garden Stater Picks Oreneas As Assistant

SAM KINDER of Hope-well, N. J., was named head golf professional at Glen Brook Country Club, officials of the Stroudsburg suburban links announced yesterday.

Kinder replaces Walt Theil who resigned to take a similar post with Water Gap Country Club, Delaware Water Gap.

The newly named Glen Brook golf head selected Nick Oreneas as assistant professional for the coming season. Kinder, 33, and Oreneas, 26, worked together last year while handling the professional duties at Green Acres Country Club, Lawrenceville, N. J.

Kinder has been in the play-for-pay ranks for 21 years, working at some of the best-known clubs on the eastern seaboard.

The past few years he has divided his duties among New Jersey links, mainly Green Acres and Plainfield Country Club.

Runnerup for Crown
In 1951, Kinder was runner-up to Emory Thomas for the New Jersey Open Golf Championship. Twice he finished fourth in the Garden State links classic.

He qualified two times for the National Open, playing in the top event at Oakmont Country Club and bypassing the affair when held at Dayton, Ohio.

Won 50 Titles

During his career he has won over 50 titles in Pro-Member and Pro Amateur tournaments. Kinder and Oreneas will arrive in Stroudsburg today and start preparing for the opening of the season—Saturday, April 12.

EL To Split Into North, South Loops

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 5—The Eastern baseball league announced today it is splitting into two divisions for the 1958 season and abandoning the time-honored Shaugnessy playoffs post-season series.

League President Thomas Richardson announced the new league alignment, placing four Pennsylvania teams—Allentown, Reading, Lancaster and York—in the south divisions and Williamsport, Pa., Albany and Binghamton, N.Y., and Springfield, Mass. in the north division.

Most Victories
The pennant winner will be the team in either division winning the most games. It will then play the leader in the other division in a best-of-seven series for possession of a permanent cup.

The pennant winning team will receive $2,000. Remuneration for the teams in the playoffs is still being studied by the league's directors.

The league opens a 140-game schedule—each team playing the others 20 times apiece—on April 22 and closes Sunday, Sept. 7.

Bowling Clinic

By Billy Sixty

Never Flip the Ball Upward

A MISTAKE that beginners invariably make is lifting the ball (see sketch) instead of pushing the arms directly outward or forward in timing with the first step (right foot in four-step footwork).

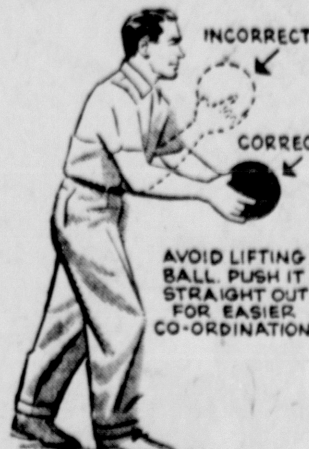

For two definite reasons, the upward motion of the arms should be eliminated: 1) First, it is taxing physically, and 2) the abrupt drop of the ball into the downward-backward arc disrupts timing, stride and balance.

If it feels comfortable to hold the ball chest-high to begin with, by all means do so. But don't merely drop the ball downward from the point. Push it outward with the first step, just as you would from a waist-high position, or when holding the ball even lower.

Makes It Easy

The push-away makes bowling easy because it regulates the length of the swinging arc and the speed of the ball. Hold the ball chest-high, (as I recommend for women and for short men) and the stride must be lengthened to co-ordinate the swing and footwork. The longer the arc, the longer the stride.

Another important point in a chest-high start: Get into stride with a short, slow step to permit the swing to catch up with the feet. Rush the first step and you'll get to the foul line ahead of the ball, off balance, with the swing collapsing approximately opposite the body. No follow-through; no control. Chances are, you'll drop the ball behind the foul line.

The same is true of the upward lift of the ball. In that case, footwork gets so far ahead of the ball that it can't catch up. Push the ball straight out ahead of you, let it swing freely of its own weight, and you'll develop timing and balance after only a bit of practice.

Snider Hurt In Accident

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 5

Outfielder Duke Snider reinjured his left knee and two other members of the Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team suffered minor injuries today in an automobile accident near the team's training camp. None was seriously hurt.

Pitcher Johnny Podres received a gash on his forehead and infielder Don Zimmer suffered bruises on his face and knee when a sports car driven by Snider stopped suddenly and sent all three men smashing into the windshield.

Beating Curfew

The accident occurred at 12:10 a.m. as the players were returning to camp from a drive-in movie, apparently rushing to beat the team's 12:30 a.m. curfew.

The car was crossing a railroad track when Snider realized he had taken a wrong turn and jammed on the brakes. All three men were thrown forward.

"It was all my fault," said Snider afterwards.

No disciplinary action was planned by the Dodger front office. General Manager Buzz Bavasi insisted the players had violated no rules. Local police did not enter the case.

Dutch Elm Tree Disease Expected To Set Record

DUTCH ELM DISEASE: So much has been written about dutch elm disease we're reluctant to add to it. The Davey Tree Expert Co. sends a reminder to city fathers saying it's cheaper for a city's treasury to care for a tree than it is to have one cut down and hauled away.

With proper yearly DDT spraying annual losses of stately elms can be kept within one or two per cent, the firm contends. Any city that stands to lose thousands of neglected elms in a relatively short time can expect to find the budget "strained to the tune of $75,000 to $150,000 for removals," the firm says.

So don't ignore diseased elms. Many such trees are standing around, serving as a breeding place for beetles. Fireplace elm logs are piled outside homes, presenting another excellent beetle breeding grounds. Most cities are behind in their task of keeping the dutch elm fungus under control. Here are a few winter symptoms to watch for:

(1) Orange bark. Diseased elms are loaded with larvae of the Lesser European Bark Beetle, located just under the solid bark. Woodpeckers and other birds dig and pry the bark (in search of food), exposing the orange inner bark surfaces. Such trees should be cut and destroyed by April 1, beetle emergence date.

(2) Drought-weakened trees cannot resist beetle invasion and should be treated as above.

(3) Trees weakened have very small leaf and flower buds, or portions of the tree crown may be devoid of spring buds.

We must save our elms. A street tree can be sprayed as many as 50 times for the cost of taking it down. Make an effort to get dead elms removed, and try annual DDT spraying to control the elm bark beetle, carrier of the Dutch Elm disease. Pruning, spraying and feeding are important also.

Just because elms become diseased, don't feel you shouldn't plant any more. Continue planting elms as we need more. So we may have means of completely licking this serious shade tree disease.

This year will see the greatest number of cases of Dutch Elm disease on record. Don't take your shade trees for granted. They take years to grow and add beauty as well as value to your home.

Question Box

R. T. of Stroudsburg: "I have a rubber plant received as a gift. Does it like sun or shade? I notice that one of the bottom leaves is starting to turn yellow. What causes this?"

The Ficus elastic, (common name, "rubber" plant) is a close relative of the fig and makes a fine house plant. It will live in full sun or in a poorly-lighted living room, likes a rich, humusy potting soil, and ample supply of water during the growing season. This subject is a fast grower so must be fed regularly with liquid plant food, since it has a tendency to become potbound. Repot it once a year.

One reason why the leaves start to turn yellow at the base and die off is due to over watering, or poor drainage. If pots are set in water no air gets to the roots and leaves start to yellow. Scorching or tipburning of the leaves can be due to red spider, dry air in too hot a room, and also there's a fungus disease (anthracnose) which causes the leaves to "scorch" or tipburn. Syringing with water checks the red spider and helps correct the dry air problem. Dusting with sulphur will help check the fungus. Pick off spotted leaves and burn, and do not allow drops of water to stand on the leaves at night.

The rubber plant has a natural tendency to grow single stemmed for years before branching. The long naked stem with a few leaves on top often looks like a plucked rooster. There are two ways to handle such a monstrosity. (1) Cut it back to within a foot of the soil, forcing new shoots to appear at the base. Don't cut it back completely as the shock may kill the plant. (2) Another method is to use the
